Before the vessel calls at any Swedish port the captain of the vessel is required to give information covering the state of health onboard the vessel to the customs authority:

- 1: If the captain has reason to believe that there is any sickness aboard which requires quarantine
- 2: If the vessel comes from a port-of-call that has been declared infected with a quarantine illness and arrival to the Swedish port occurs during the incubation period
- 3: If anyone onboard the vessel has visited or been in contact with an infected area and arrival of vessel at Swedish port occurs before the incubation period for the sickness has expired.
